Technical Audit

Critical technical errors

29501

Critical technical errors appear in the websites code and HTML markup. They confuse search engine robots by blocking them from scanning all necessary information on the site. These errors make the site vulnerable to competitors and reduce rankings.

Other technical errors

Other technical errors appear in the site software and HTML markup. These errors do not affect the site ranking directly. However, they may cause visual problems on the site: incorrect displaying of content, layout or usability issues on mobile devices. These errors are likely to cause a decrease in user-experience and will likely be reflected in the behavioral metrics of the site.

Warnings

Warnings are issues that could require immediate attention or maybe innocuous dependent on your website. These warnings may require the help of a specialist - you can contact our support team to get support straight away if you believe any of these warnings are dangerous for your website.

Notices

Notices are things that our crawler has noticed during the crawling of your site. These are not errors, nor warnings, but instead useful bits of information our crawler has noticed while crawling your site.

Crawler Stats

Crawl limit

1000

Maximum number of pages crawlable (set in crawl settings).

Number of pages crawled by our crawler

1000

Number of crawled pages. As per the specified crawl settings, our crawler will crawl your internal links. Please note that your site may contain more pages than our crawler was able to find.

Pages indexed by Google

4960

If the number of pages found by Google and our crawler differ greatly in number from one another, or the number of pages you know your website has, then this is likely a symptom of poor site indexing. Here is a list of the reasons why your website may not be showing the correct number of pages in our index or Google's index (ordered from most likely to least likely):

- Search engines sometimes index document files on the site, such as PDF, DOC, etc. Our crawler does not crawl them, so the number of pages will likely be less.
- Pagination pages are being blocked from being indexed (links to the 2nd,3rd,4th blog page etc).
- The site has a large number of duplicate pages.
- You have set the Ajax-upload of files and links via JavaScript. Our crawler does not crawl JavaScript but Googlebot does, so this can cause discrepancies.
- Critical HTML errors stopping crawlers from being able to index your pages correctly.
- Google penalties and de-indexing of your site.
- Slow page load speed (crawlers have a limited crawl budget, they will only spend a short amount of time per page).
- IP range restrictions or certain user agents being blocked by your site. This stops crawlers from being able to index your pages.

Security

SSL certificate

Yes

SSL (Secure Sockets Layer) is the standard security technology for establishing an encrypted link between a web server and a browser. Google now uses HTTPS as a ranking signal. Websites that use HTTPS will have a slight ranking advantage if HTTPS is enabled.

Valid until

06.11.2024

If the SSL certificate has expired, it issues a warning like this: "Potential Security Risk Ahead". If a person visits an "unsafe" website URL, they would be greeted with a message stating that the site is not secure via the browser, and that they should leave the site to remain safe. Expired certificates can result in a number of negative consequences for the website owner: most likely, lots of potential customers will bounce from the site (leave the site) due to the insecure site messages and thus are likely to lose this business to their competitors'. If too many website visitors bounce from your site — which is likely in this particular example — Google will inevitably demote your website in the SERPs due to poor bounce rates and satisfaction of query intent.

Self-signed certificate

No

You need a Trusted CA Signed SSL Certificate to get the green lock & secure sign on Google Chrome. You also need this to get the small Google ranking boost of having HTTPS. A self-signed certificate can be generated directly on anyone's webserver, so it has no value for search engines and browsers will show an error. Self-signed certificates are not acceptable for public sites because every user will see the notice that the certificate is invalid due to it being self-signed.

The domain is listed in the certificate

Yes

SSL certificates are for one specific domain. It cannot be used for other domains. The browser will warn visitors if used on multiple sites and inform the user that said site is dangerous. This will increase the bounce rate of the site. The search engines will also check the certificate, and if they notice an SSL certificate being used without the domain name listed, then they are likely to demote the site until the issue is fixed.

Trusted certificate

Yes

If an SSL certificate is not confirmed by the registration center a browser will display a mark about the danger and scare users away. The search engines also check the certificate, and if a problem arises, the website will lose positions in the search results in a short time.

301 redirect from HTTP to HTTPS

Yes

There is no use in buying SSL if search engines and users still visit the site via HTTP. You need to redirect all of your traffic via a 301 redirect in .htaccess from the HTTP version of your site (unprotected and unencrypted) to the HTTPS version of your website (protected and encrypted).

Display port 443 shown in the URL

No

If your server is configured incorrectly, the port 443 may appear in the URL. This does not look good to users and may confuse them about the name of your brand and how to access your site. An example of this would be <https://example.com:443> which is confusing and does not look as nice as <https://example.com>.

Your IP address has been blacklisted

No

RBL / DNSBL databases are blacklists of IP addresses that are commonly used while engaged in spam. A site can be blacklisted after receiving multiple complaints about spam. If you use shared hosting with a shared IP address, then your IP address could be blacklisted because of other malicious spammers on your shared hosting using that IP address. Blacklisted IP addresses are untrustworthy in the eyes of search engines and mail servers may mark incoming e-mail messages from your domain as "spam" or even block them entirely. You do not want your IP to be blacklisted, and if it is, you need to arrange for a new dedicated IP address from your hosting provider.

Mixed content

Mixed content is a warning that will appear in your browser when you have content loading through both HTTPS and HTTP.

Typically, the initial HTML page will load through a secure HTTPS:// connection, but other resources such as images, stylesheets, scripts, and so on, are loaded over an HTTP:// connection.

This leaves the content that isn't secured through the HTTPS connection vulnerable to attack by 'sniffers' or 'man-in-the-middle attacks'.

A sniffer attack refers to data being stolen or intercepted as it travels across the data network. This is only possible when the data isn't encrypted (as is done in HTTPS). A man-in-the-middle attack is similar in that it is a type of eavesdropping attack, where the attackers interrupt an existing conversation or data transfer. Yet again only made possible by unencrypted data.

Links to compromised domains

A compromised domain is a domain name that has been hacked or hijacked by cybercriminals for malicious purposes, such as hosting malware, phishing, spam, or ransomware. Linking to compromised domains can have serious consequences for your SEO and website reputation.

Pages with frame/iframe

The <iframe> HTML element represents a nested browsing context, embedding another HTML page into the current one.

The <iframe> element may be a security risk if hostile site is embedded inside an IFRAME on your site too.

If someone compromises a site that is in a frame, then they can conceivably compromise the integrity of your site.

A malicious site can use an iframe to exploit a vulnerable site via CSRF.

And iframe's are used by the attacker in a "UI Redress attack".

Therefore you need to pay attention when adding an iFrame from an untrusted site website.

Website Availability Test

Preferred URL

If you have https enabled you can have 4 versions of your site the user can access (https://www, https://, http://www, http://) or two versions of your site without https (http://www, http://). This is not good for user experience and may negatively affect indexing if you leave your site accessible via multiple URLs. You want to have just one way to access your site (https://www. or https://) and you can achieve this using the canonical tag and by 301 directing all other versions of your site.

Website is accessible from different locations in the world

15 / 15

This report shows what different countries are allowed to view your website. For example, if you have a US company you may have blocked access to EU countries and visitors to avoid GDPR regulations.

Website document size is the same for all user-agents

No

Document requests to your server by our crawler should return the same document size - this is the expected behavior of a server.

If there is a discrepancy in document size then both our crawler and your users are likely receiving different versions of your pages.

If this is the case, then you shouldn't be surprised when you open the page and see different content to what our crawler is showing. The most likely cause of this discrepancy is that your page contains dynamic elements that are constantly in flux.

A difference in document size can also be attributed to malicious code being present on your site (although less common). In such cases, the malicious code is shown only to certain users and search engines, whereas other users (like yourself) see the original code and are none the wiser to the 'injection' of the malicious code into your pages. If malicious code is the reasoning for the change in document size, then it is likely the infected pages will be showing malicious code to the search engines which can hurt your rankings substantially. Malicious code normally results in cloaked links which is heavily penalized by Google and other search engines.

Domain name takes users to your site only

No

Users should always see your website after they enter your address. The only exception to this is if you are 301 redirecting your old site to your new site. Apart from this, if your* website is redirecting to another site that you have not specifically set a 301 to, then your site has been hacked and infected with malware or a virus.

Domain Information

Domain age

26 years 3 months

New domains (younger than 6-12 months) are considered the hardest to promote because they have not been around long enough to establish authority and trust in the eyes of search engines.

Domain expiration date

04.13.2025

Registry Expiration

Hosting information

The NS record (nameservers) points to the DNS server that the domain is hosted with.

Server Errors

5xx Errors (internal server errors)

Error codes: 500, 503, 504 are all internal server errors. These errors appear due to the incorrect writing of the system file or other problems on your server. 5xx errors prevent the indexing of the site and search engines reduce the rankings of sites with a large number of 5xx errors.

URL unanswered errors

Our crawler received an unanswered error when crawling. This can happen when a crawler times-out when crawling a page (a crawler only has a set amount of time it can spend on one page) or another network related issue when requesting a page from your website. For example, your server may have been down or too busy to handle our requests when our crawler tried to access a certain page.

Pages showing error notices and PHP, MySQL, ... messages

Incorrect permissions on a PHP and CGI script (etc.) usually cause these. PHP warnings and notices help developers debug issues with their code. However it provides for a poor browsing experience when they are visible to all your website visitors. If users find you on Google, click through onto your page and then leave quickly this contributes to a poor bounce rate (the rate at which users leave your site quickly after visiting) which negatively affects your on site conversions and rankings on Google.

Correct 404 response when page not found

Yes

A 404 error is an HTTP status code that indicates that the page you were trying to reach on a website could not be found on their server. You need for your server to correctly show 404 responses if the page cannot be found or it will seriously harm indexing and search rankings.

Fixed www. and non-www versions

Yes

Domain bonding is a server configuration that redirects users to the main website address when they enter a website address with "www" and "without www", with "http://" or "https://". This parameter allows you to transfer traffic and PR metrics to the main website address. Pages without bonding are considered duplicate, and therefore, receive reduced rankings.

Resources

4xx errors

27

A 404 error occurs when a user requests a page that does not exist on the site. It happens when the page has been removed from the site, or its URL has been changed. Search engines do not reduce the position of the site with a small number of these errors. However, if the site has a large number of pages with 404 errors, then the search engines may take note of this as evidence of a poorly maintained site and demote you accordingly.

Note: Our crawler may sometimes receive a 404 error from a page that loads correctly for the user and has no visual issues, but is showing as a 404 non-existent page to our crawler. If this occurs, then we would recommend for you to check the response codes for these pages manually and report any false positives.

JavaScript file loading errors

JavaScript on your site is essential for visual formatting and for complex functions on your site. If you see any errors here for JavaScript files not loading correctly, it means that your users may be getting an unformatted version of your site with broken features.

CSS file loading errors

CSS on your site is essential for the visual formatting of your site and makes it readable for users. If you see any errors here for CSS files not loading correctly it means that your users may be getting FOUC (flash of unstyled content) or no visual formatting at all.

Robots.txt

robots.txt

Yes

The robots.txt file helps to control the indexing (reading) of a site by search robots. Think of it as a tour guide for the search engines, telling them the best places to visit and the places to never visit. It is a list of instructions for search engines - you can block files, pages and directories of the site from being indexed by search engine bots. If the robots.txt file is missing, search engines will read all pages of the site by default. Search engine robots (crawlers) will index and crawl every page of your site unless a "robots" meta-tag is found in the html code of the page instructing them not to index a specific page.

Robots.txt errors

7

If your robots.txt file contains any errors then it can cause 1 of 2 things:

- Search engine robots (crawlers) will not be able to read the instructions and rules correctly and will default to indexing all content on the site and ignore any rules after the error.
- Crawlers may be blocked from indexing the entirety of the site (equal to setting your entire site to noindex) and it will not show in the search engines.

Sitemap.xml

Sitemap.xml file found

Yes

A Sitemap.xml file is like a human map but for search engines. It tells the search engines where to find the best pages, how often to check them, and other pages they recommend the search engine to browse and index. Although it is not a mandatory for your site to have a sitemap.xml file, having one assures that the search engine crawlers know the locations of your pages and how frequently they should visit these pages. Detailed information about using the sitemap.xml file is available here: <https://sitemaps.org>.

Pages included in sitemap.xml but are not available for crawling

To collect this data all pages must be crawled

Sitemap.xml is a file that helps search engines to quickly get the addresses of site pages, the time/frequency of their last update and page priority.

Your Sitemap.xml file has pages that redirect search robots to pages with 404 errors or duplicate pages. The more sitemap errors you have, the more rankings will be reduced by search engines.

Pages found that are indexable but not listed in sitemap.xml

To collect this data all pages must be crawled

Sitemap.xml is a file that helps search engines to quickly get the addresses of site pages, the time/frequency of their last update and page priority.

This report lists the pages that are opened for indexing but are missing from the sitemap.

This is not a critical error. However, it slows down site indexing.

Pages included in sitemap.xml but are blocked from crawling

To collect this data all pages must be crawled

Sitemap.xml is a file in a special format for search engines that helps to quickly get the addresses of site pages, the time of their last update, the frequency they should be checked, and the sites hierarchy. This report lists pages that are blocked from indexing but are present in the sitemap. This can lead to the indexation of unwanted information.

Why is this situation dangerous?

- If the sitemap contains extra pages, the search engines may penalize the site, and lower the search rankings.
- The search results may reveal confidential information.
- Indexing of extra pages wastes crawler budgets and stops the pages you want from being indexed/re-crawled by search engines.

Number of sitemap files found

8

This shows how many sitemap files were found on the site. Sitemap files contain a list of pages and other site resources to be indexed. This information helps search engines index the site more efficiently. The standard adopted for the sitemap allows the use of many sitemap files. Please note that sitemap files may not be found if their paths do not comply with the sitemap protocol standard or have spelling errors.

Number of items in all sitemaps (including pages, images, videos, etc)

6390

This report shows the number of HTML pages and other resources found in all the sitemap files at the time of site analysis.

Number of pages in all sitemaps (HTML only, excluding images and videos)

4380

This report shows how many pages in HTML format were found in all the sitemap files at the time of the site analysis. This doesn't include resources in other formats such as images, etc. This is a useful report for comparing the number found in the sitemap files vs the actual number of pages on the site and indexed in the search engines. This may help to detect various problems, quickly. For example, some sites may not have removed pages from the sitemap that have been deleted or disabled in the site's administrative panel. This can therefore lead to a loss in crawling budget, and potentially a decrease in the site's position. If there are significantly fewer pages in the search engine index than in the sitemap it may also indicate that the site has issues with indexing. Or that the sitemap is formatted incorrectly and contains extra pages.

Total sitemap errors

Errors in the sitemap can lead to incorrect interpretation of data and the inability to use the entire file or individual lines within. We check the sitemap for compliance with sitemap, XML, w3c standards, as well as Google, Yahoo and Bing recommendations.

Total sitemap warnings

Warnings indicate that there are problems that will significantly decrease a sitemap's effectiveness. For example, if a site has tens of thousands of pages, if done correctly, indexing changes on pages can take several hours to several days. However, if done incorrectly, for example, if there are no timestamps on the sitemap, then it may take several weeks to index the changes. This, therefore, slows down any promotion or optimization of your site.

HTML Errors

Errors found in HTML code

12920 (on 902 pages)

This report displays critical errors in the HTML code and HTML DOM structure. HTML errors confuse search engines and their crawling robots may incorrectly determine the content of the site, and overlook important parts of the page because it can't read your page due to HTML coding errors.

Multiple title or description

You should NEVER have multiple meta titles and descriptions on just ONE page - you should only have one meta title and one meta description on each page. Having more than one meta title and description on a page confuses search engine and you may be penalized.

Pages with oversized HTML code

Excessively large HTML-pages (more than > 3 Mb in raw HTML) are rarely indexed by search engines. Search engines have strict limits regarding the amount of time they will afford their crawlers to spend per page. Our crawler will not be able to crawl excessively large pages.

Incorrect HTML DOCTYPE

The DOCTYPE tells Web browsers what version of HTML your page is using. The DOCTYPE should always be the very first line of your HTML code.

Though modern browsers disregard minor issues, serious errors such as incorrect DOCTYPE do affect the accessibility of web content.

Images

Number of images

6034

Images add value to your SEO efforts by increasing user engagement and increase buyers' attention, trust, and conversion rate. Please note that your site may contain more pages than our crawler was able to find (example: image as a CSS background).

Missing image alt text

1572

Search engines use alt text and the contents of the page to understand the image's subject matter. Applying alt attributes to your product images will have an impact on your SEO results.

Missing image title attribute

6034

Title text appears when a user hovers over an image. That being said, the image title is not used for search ranking. Google extracts information about the subject matter of the image from the content of the page, including captions and image titles. Wherever possible, make sure images are placed near relevant text and on pages that are relevant to the image subject matter. (<https://developers.google.com/search/docs/advanced/guidelines/google-images>)

Pages w/o unique images

443

This report is likely to show pages with no images in the content area. Images add value to your SEO efforts by increasing user engagement and increase buyers' attention, trust, and conversion rate. Please note that your site may contain more pages than our crawler was able to find (example: image as a CSS background).

Pages without images with <10 copies

433

This report is likely to show pages with no images in the content area. Images add value to your SEO efforts by increasing user engagement and increase buyers' attention, trust, and conversion rate. Please note that your site may contain more pages than our crawler was able to find (example: image as a CSS background).

Google PageSpeed Insights

Speed optimization for mobile

41 / 100

Level of speed optimization shows how fast the mobile version of the site can be loaded. Slow page loads on mobile devices reduces user-friendliness of the site and can negatively affect search rankings as mobile page load speed is a ranking factor on mobile.

Speed optimization for desktop

84 / 100

Level of speed optimization shows how fast the desktop version of the site can be loaded. Slow page loads on desktop reduces the user-experience of the site.

Average page load time (only html loaded), per second

5.56 sec.

The mean average of all your pages loading times. As a note, reducing the load time of pages on the site increases crawler indexing, improves conversions, and improves overall user-experience. The average page load time should not exceed 2 seconds unless you have an image heavy page with lazy loaded images.

Redirects

Number of redirections found

105

URL redirection (redirect) – is the automatic redirection of users from one page of the site to another. For example, you may visit www.example.com and be sent to <https://example.com> - this would classify as a redirect. This report contains all the redirects that were found while crawling your site. Redirections are usually intentional and would only cause issues if you were sending users to a bad third-party website or to a 404 page.

Multiple (chained) redirects

URL redirection (redirect) – is the automatic redirection of users from one page of the site to another. Multiple (chained) redirects refer to when a user is directed more than once after visiting a URL.

Google does not consider multiple redirects an issue unless they send the user to a bad third-party website. However, multiple (chained) redirects can provide a poor user-experience if there are too many chained together.

Pages with rel=canonical tag

rel="canonical" is a tag applied to pages that essentially says; "I'm the master copy of this page" to the search engine crawlers when they crawl your site.

A canonicalized page is a page that is recommended for indexation in search engines by you, and carries the weight of being 'the' authoritative page for that page's specific text, on your site. For example, when a search engine crawler is crawling your site and comes across the rel="canonical" tag on a page, it tells the crawler to trust and index this version of the page on your site.

The rel="canonical" tag affords search engines the ability to quickly identify the "master copy" of a page that has other pages with duplicate/similar content. This helps the search engine crawler know exactly what page should be indexed and what pages shouldn't.

Google officially recommends using the rel="canonical" tag to prevent duplicate URL's. You can read about these guidelines here: Duplicate URL consolidation.

Redirect to another domain

633

In this report, you can see when one-page redirects to another, along with the response code. Whilst redirects can be useful when used properly, they can also harm a site when used to redirect to doorway pages.

Doorway pages are an often-manipulative technique used to redirect a user to one page using cloaking, spamming, etc. Google heavily penalize the use of these pages, as they are viewed as a way of attempting to unfairly manipulate the system, which can lead to a bad user experience.

If you identify any occurrences of doorway pages you have two options:

- 1. Add value to each of those pages instead of sending the user to a new page.
- 2. Remove them completely and focus on informative, helpful landing pages.

Redirect to subdomain

A redirect automatically makes a browser and search engines go from one URL to another URL. It's not bad for SEO if there is no doorway page ( ).

Multiple instances of rel="canonical" on the same page

Having multiple instances of rel="canonical" on the same page will invalidate the rel="canonical" tag in its entirety for that page. If multiple instances are found, Google will decide themselves what page should be the authoritative one (this is not ideal)

Reference:

Cross-domain rel=canonical tag

You can use the rel="canonical" link element across different domains to specify the exact URL of your preferred domain for indexing purposes. Google supports cross-domain rel="canonical" tags:

However, most of the time cross-domain rel=canonical usage is accidental and therefore requires your attention to remedy.

Pages with rel=canonical tags point to non-existent pages

The page that the rel=canonical points to do not resolve and/or do not exist anymore. These will need to be addressed.

The canonical URL is blocked from indexing

This wastes crawling budget and can be a mistake. If Google spends too much time crawling URLs that aren't appropriate for the index, Googlebot might decide that it's not worth the time to look at the rest of your site.

Missing http/https prefix in URL

Missing http/https prefix in URL. Absolute URLs should specify the full path—including the scheme like http:// or https://

rel=canonical link in the <body> of the page

The rel=canonical link tag should only appear in the <head>. When you encounter a rel=canonical designation in the <body>, it's disregarded.

SEO Audit

Critical SEO errors

210

Critical SEO errors are serious search optimization errors that can significantly damage search rankings.

Other SEO Errors

242

Other SEO Errors are less likely to negatively affect search rankings. However, a large number of these errors can negatively impact search rankings.

Warnings

1437

Warnings are issues that could require immediate attention or maybe innocuous dependent on your website. These warnings may require the help of a specialist - you can contact our support team to get support straight away if you believe any of these warnings are dangerous for your website.

Notices

Notices are things that our crawler has noticed during the crawling of your site. These are not errors, nor warnings, but instead useful bits of information our crawler has noticed while crawling your site.

Site Indexability

The site is available for search engine indexing

Allowed

If the site is blocked from indexing, the search engines will not be able to crawl (read) the content of the web pages, and the site will not be displayed in the search results.

Your site can be blocked from indexing manually via:

- Robots.txt
- Entering meta name="robots" on the main page or all pages of the site;
- With special software (for example, by blocking the user-agents of search engines);
- By closing all links from the main page with the "nofollow" meta tag.

Pages blocked from crawling and indexation

These pages have noindex in their html or are blocked from crawling and indexing via their robots.txt file. They could also have a rel=canonical pointing to another URL.

If the page is blocked from indexing, then search engines will not be able to read (index) the content on the site. Thus, they will not display the site in the search results.

Sometimes it is necessary to block some pages from indexing. This is especially true for duplicate pages. Check the list of blocked pages to make sure that no page was blocked by mistake.

Landing pages blocked from crawling and indexation

0

When a search engine crawlers visits your site, it will crawl all the pages it can find via internal links and index them accordingly. This report shows pages that are blocked from indexing. These pages will not show up in the SERPs.

Critical SEO errors in HTML

Pages with identical meta title tag

Pages with identical meta title tags confuse search engines and users. Using the same meta title tag on multiple pages indicates to search engines that you have duplicate content on these pages. This is likely to decrease SERP rankings.

Pages with identical meta description tags

107

Pages with identical meta description tags confuse search engines and users. Using the same meta description tag on multiple pages indicates to search engines that you have duplicate content on these pages. This is likely to decrease SERP rankings. If the search engines deem your description tag to be irrelevant to the content found on the page it is likely to generate its own description which will not be tailored to the user and will decrease CTR.

Pages with identical meta titles & descriptions

TITLE and DESCRIPTION tags are imperative to CTR and correctly telling the user what your page is about. If search engines find identical TITLE and DESCRIPTION tags then they will create their own Snippet from fragments of text on your page that they deem most relevant to the page – this is not ideal and these tags will not be optimized for your users.

Pages with identical meta descriptions & h1 tags

Your meta description and header 1 title tags `<h1>` should be different from one another. The `<h1>` title should be the title and headline of your page that the user sees when on your website, and the meta description should be a short summary of what is on the page and is viewed on the SERPs.

Missing title

Search engines use TITLE for:

- Page ranking;
- Snippet generation (snippet – is a description of the site in the search results).

The content of the TITLE affects the CTR of the snippet. And the high CTR increases the search rank of the site. The title should be comprehensive and descriptive in order to attract customers to the site.

A short title tag does not give the search engines enough information about the page and the search engines can use a another text fragment from the page for the snippet instead of your desired title.

This is likely to lead in decreased CTR and search engines demoting your page in the SERP rankings.

Missing h1

17

The header 1 tag <h1> is the most important header tag on your page and tells the search engines what your page is about and is also likely to contain keywords you are trying to rank for. The <h1> tag is the most important heading of the first level.

Search engines give substantial weight to <h1> headings with keywords. The <h1> of a page should be an overarching topic of the page, and thus likely will also include keywords.

Pages with Content Issues

Pages with thin content

Thin content pages are pages with a small amount of content (words in this case). Search engines consider such pages as useless for users and will likely decrease SERP rankings for sites with a large number of these pages.

100% duplicate pages

This report refers to URLs with 100% identical content to other pages on your site set for indexing. This is normally an issue associated with incorrect placement of rel='canonical' tag or forgetting it entirely. Multiple infractions of 100% duplicate pages are highly likely to incur duplicate page penalties.

Similar pages

27

This report refers to URLs with > 97% identical content when compared to other pages on your site set for indexing. To avoid this error, you can do one of two things:

- Add more content to these pages with > 97% identical content.
- Add rel='canonical' tag pointing to the original/authoritative source of this information on your site.
- Rewrite duplicate sections of text on pages with > 97% identical content.

Pages with keyword stuffing

241

Keyword stuffing (also known as webspam or spamdexing) is a technique in which keywords are loaded into a web page's meta tags, visible content, or backlink anchor text repeatedly in order to increase search rankings for those keywords. Keyword stuffing may lead to a website being banned or penalized on all major search engines. If a specific page is overstuffed with certain keywords, search engines may change your landing page to a less relevant page or de-index that page. Multiple infractions are likely to lead to Google permanently de-indexing your entire site, not just one page. For some sites (~ 3% of cases), a high keyword density is not a problem - this is especially true for a product catalog or price lists that are thin on content and will repeat the product name and features frequently.

We also check the density of keywords on competitor sites in the top 10 for the keywords you wish to rank for. If your competitors have a higher keyword density than your pages do, you can use more keywords per page. When you are unsure whether your pages are overstuffed with keywords, always check the content on your competitor's websites.

Pages with plagiarism

Plagiarism is the unauthorized use of texts posted on other sites.

Your site can be penalized for stealing and using someone else's content.

If there is text on your site that is identical to your competitors' content ( $\geq 30\%$ ), search engines may decrease your rankings. Search engines on occasion can incorrectly identify the authorship of text and penalize your site even if someone copied content from your webpage originally.

Copying is only allowed for online stores using manufacturers descriptions whereby it is hard to make a unique description for each item (although you should always try for optimal SEO).

Online stores with the original description have advantages in SERP rankings.

Our plagiarism checker is best at detecting blatant plagiarism, which can seriously affect the rankings of your site. We always recommend checking any suspicious pages manually, that are flagged up by our algorithm.

Pages with adult content

If your content is deemed unsafe for an audience under 18, you may find that the site doesn't appear when people search with SafeSearch on (it's on by default). Adult content and sites containing obscene language are completely excluded from SafeSearch results. This report (although it does not catch 100% instances of adult content) is also useful for seeing if anyone has infected your site with adult content to decrease your search rankings.

Pages with swear words

Officially, Google takes no position on curse words in website content. However, if Google crawls your site and finds swear words it may filter your site out of the results when SafeSearch is enabled (it's on by default). It is important to note that if you have pages with swear words found, that they may in their used context not be swear words and related to something entirely different altogether. Context is key here and you should read the report and check the links individually. On E-commerce site specifically, it is bad for search rankings if they find swear words in the feedback section of different products. This would indicate that your site is selling bad products that produce a negative user experience.

Other SEO Errors

Pages with short meta title (<2 words)

A short meta title (<2 words) does not give the user or search engines enough information about the page. This is likely to lead in decreased CTR and search engines demoting your page in the SERP rankings. This report also includes pages with 0 words in the meta title.

Pages with a short meta description (<5 words)

A short meta description (<5 words) does not give the user or search engines enough information about the contents of the page. This report also includes pages with 0 words in the meta description.

Search engines use the description for:

- Page ranking;
- Snippet generation (snippet – is a description of pages shown in the search results).

A short meta description does not allow search engines to generate relevant snippets and so they fill in the missing information from the main text of the page. This is likely to lead in decreased CTR and search engines demoting your page in the SERP rankings.

Pages with a long meta description (>320 characters)

A long meta description is not included in the snippet and will be truncated. Search engines will truncate longer descriptions than 240 to 280 characters (dependent on device). In this case, the keywords are not included in the snippet, and the search engines can use a random text fragment from the page for the snippet instead of your desired meta description. You should always write a relevant description with between 240 and 280 characters. If you do so, then Google is more likely to use this tag when generating a snippet.

No page should ever have more than 200 internal outbound links unless you are a directory or an e-commerce seller. This is seen as a sign of a spammy site and you will be penalized on these pages.

https://www.canon.com.tr/pro/ambassadors/	215	231

Page without any internal outbound links

These are pages with no internal outbound links. This is normal for .pdf files, but normal URLs should always have internal links to follow. If this is a print version, cart, and so on, the page needs to be blocked for indexing.

Landing pages with less than 5 inbound internal links

Your internal linking structure should always be pointing (internal outbound linking) at least 5 internal links to pages you wish to rank on Google. Pages receiving less than 5 inbound internal links are not likely to be seen as authoritative by Google in your site's hierarchy. The more links to a page, the higher it's rank.

Optimization Tool: Google Turkey (Desktop)

Keyword Grouping

Keywords with compatible Top10 SERP ranking landing pages

81

Shows what percentage of keywords that have landing pages that match Top10 ranking standards: page depth, size, query intent (commercial/information).

Keyword groups with just one keyword

59

See what keyword groups only include one word - such groups should have new keywords added to them. You can merge other related one/few keyword groups with one another and possibly ranking for more keywords on associated landing pages.

Keywords with incompatible and/or incorrect landing pages for Top10 SERP rankings

Shows how many keywords have landing pages that do not match top10 ranking standards because of incorrect: page depth, size, query intent (commercial/information).

Keyword groups without a landing page

54

Keyword groups that each need a landing page with related content pertaining to keyword/s in the group.

Optimization Tool

Average similarity score (between your website and the Top10)

31

Shows similarity score based on the key features and content of your sites landing pages vs your competitors' pages in the top 10 search results.

Keyword groups with incorrect text size of their landing pages

66

Shows your keyword groups whose landing page text size does not correspond to the size of text seen on most websites in the Top 10 search results.

Keyword groups with an LSI value of less than 40 percent

57

The process of Latent Semantic Indexing (LSI) helps users find what they are looking for easier, and encourages sites to provide more relevant and meaningful content relating to their main keywords. Using LSI keeps your content from being penalized for the overuse of specific keywords, and gives you more related keywords to use in your content that aids readability, topic coverage, and search rankings for new keywords. An LSI value closer to 100% is better.

Keyword groups with an LSI value of less than 60 percent

Similarity score < 40% (between keyword group landing page and Top 10)

Shows how many keyword groups (and their associated landing pages) have a similarity score of less than 40% when compared to competitor's landing page features and content in the top 10 search results. If a keyword group does not have a landing page selected yet then it will be given a default similarity score of zero.

Shows how many keyword groups (and their associated landing pages) have a similarity score of less than 60% when compared to competitor's landing page features and content in the top 10 search results. If a keyword group does not have a landing page selected yet then it will be given a default similarity score of zero.

Shows how many keyword groups (and their associated landing pages) have a similarity score of less than 80% when compared to competitor's landing page features and content in the top 10 search results. If a keyword group does not have a landing page selected yet then it will be given a default similarity score of zero.

Number of incoming links shows to the search engine; how important the landing page is in your website's hierarchy. So, the more inbound internal links you have pointing to your landing pages, the better. This report highlights landing pages on your site that have less than 5 inbound internal links pointing to them.
